NATION WHIRLED INTO WAR MAELSTROM

WIRELESS TELLS OF DECISION

Message Announcing Nation's Entry Into Great War Is Flashed to Every U. S. Ship And Naval Station—President Warns Alien Enemies Against Misconduct In War Proclamation.

WASHINGTON, APRIL 6.—Just after President Wilson signed the war resolution, the following message started from the great Arlington wireless station on its way around the world, addressed to every United States war vessel and naval station:

"The President has signed an act of congress which declares that a state of war exists between the United States and Germany."

THE PRESIDENT'S WAR PROCLAMATION

WASHINGTON, APRIL 6. — The United States formally plunged into the world war against Germany this afternoon in a series of rapid strides.

President Wilson signed the war resolution passed by congress at 1:13 o'clock. Within a few minutes he had issued a call for volunteers for the army and navy and issued a proclamation to the nation.

Immediately upon the President's action in signing the resolution, wireless messages were flashed to every American ship on the high seas, warship or merchant ship, and to army field stations everywhere. A copy of the joint resolution was immediately

WALHONDING COVERS ROAD TO LEWISVLLE

Road Was Inundated Friday When River Rose Six Inches In An Hour.

TRAFFIC MAY BE RESUMED TODAY

Tuscarawas River Rising Slowly As Walhonding And Killbuck Recede.

At 2:30 o'clock Friday afternoon the waters of the Walhonding ebbed over the Canal Lewisville road and mingled with those of the Tuscarawas without the formality of their usual course.

From that time until an early hour this morning the waters continued to rise but cold temperatures prevailing this morning and the reports from upriver villages indicated that the Walhonding would begin to recede early today with little or no damage resulting from its overflow, tho it was expected that for a short time today traffic on the Canal Lewisville road might be impossible.

Walhonding Falling

Reports from Nellie indicated that while the Walhonding was meandering over the lowland valleys and across the road between the village and the bridge, the waters were falling and traffic had not and would not be impeded.

Reports from Helmick were to the effect that the Killbuck Creek was running bankfull, but the waters were falling and would not overflow the stretch of road between the village and Blissfield.

Tuscarawas Rises

From near West Lafayette came the report that the Tuscarawas river was rising slowly, but with no danger of an overflow. As the Tuscarawas reaches its crest about 18 to 24 hours later than the Walhonding, in all probability its rise will be too late to affect travel to or from Coshocton.

The rise of the Walhonding is rapid and its fall correspondingly so. At 3.30 o'clock Friday afternoon the guage in the Tuscarawas showed a stage of 7.2 feet and an hour later it stood at 7.7 according to Mrs. William Jeffries, U. S. observer.

This rapid rise was caused by the overflow from the Walhonding and a 10 ft. stage may be reached as predicted by the weather bureau in a report to Mayor H. L. Richardson Friday. The fall of the Walhonding is as rapid as its rise and early today its water may have receded to such an extent that traffic is possible on the Canal Lewisville road.

TRIAL POSTPONED.

The trial of W. H. Ringer, charged with exceeding the automobile speed limit, as been postponed until Wednesday by Mayor Richardson.

A CLEAN BEAT

The Morning Tribune, served by Associated Press leased wire, scored a clean beat yesterday morning in this territory over the mail editions of the big dailies of Cleveland, Pittsburg, Cincinnati and Columbus, in carrying the news of the vote in the House on the war resolution.

Papers from all these cities are sold in Coshocton, but none of them could send their mail editions to press late enough to carry word of the momentous vote which lined up the United States on the side of Germany's enemies. As the war progresses our people will come to appreciate this service more and more, as it will enable The Tribune to give them news several hours later than they can get in the city papers.

Mayor Issues Proclamation On War Issue

Foreigners living citizens within the corporate limits of Coshocton are assured that neither their property nor their rights will be interefered with so long as they are law abiding in the wartime proclamation issued Friday afternoon by Mayor H. L. Richardson who also urges that war arguments be tabooed. The proclamation follows:

"I, H. L. Richardson, mayor of Coshocton, deem it wise in the present crisis, in this formal proclamation, to assure all residents of foreign birth that since the United States has become actively involved in the great European war no citizen of any foreign power, resident in Coshocton, need fear any invasion of his personal or property rights so long as he goes peacebly about his business and conducts himself in a law-abiding manner.

The United States has never, in any way, confiscated the property of any foreign resident unless by his own hostile acts he made it necessary.

I take this formal means of declaring to all foreign-born residents that they will be protected in the ownership of their property and money and that they will be free from personal molestation, so long as they obey the laws of the state and nation and the ordinances of the city.

I urgently request that all our people refrain from public discussion of questions involved in the present crisis and maintain a calm and considerate attitude toward everyone without regard to their nationality.

I further request that the American flag be displayed at every residence and business place in Coshocton at this time.

H. L. RICHARDSON,
Mayor of Coshocton

"One day, when baking cookies," says a housewife in the Woman's Home Companion, "I expressed a wish for larger pans. My husband said, 'Why not have some made to fit the oven?' As these pans hold three dozens of cookies I can do my baking very much more quickly than I could with the old pans, which only held twelve cookies."

POLITENESS IN PORTUGAL.

Ceremony With Which a Visitor Is Greeted and Dismissed.

That Portuguese politeness is most ceremonial and may proceed to an extraordinary extent is indicated in the case say, of a visit to a high dignitary.

The caller ascends a magnificent staircase, passes through a long suit of rooms to the apartment in which the dignitary is seated. He is received with many bows and smiles.

When the visit is concluded the caller bows and prepares to depart When he reaches the door he must, according to the invariable custom of the country make another salutation He then discovers that his host is following him and that the salutation is returned by one equally profound. When the callet arrives at the door of the second apartment the dignitary is standing on the threshold of the first, and the same ceremony is again passed between them When the third apartment is gained the caller observes that his host is occupying the place the caller has just left in the second. The same civilities are then renewed, and these polite ceremonies are continued until the caller has traversed the whole suit of apartments

At the balustrade the caller makes a bow and as he supposes a final salutation But no; when he has reached the first landing place the host is at the top of the stairs; when the caller stands on the second landing place his host has descended to the first, and upon each of these occasions their heads wag with increasing humility. Finally the journey to the foot of the stairs is accomplished.—Los Angeles Times.

Our Sleep.

As a race we sleep too little. An infant's life is nearly all sleep. Gradually as the child grows older the hours of sleep are shortened. Youth till the age of twenty is reached requires fully ten hours' sleep Although nature demands fewer hours' sleep in summer than in winter, it has been proved that eight hours of sleep are required for the average adult in good health. By this is meant not simply eight hours in bed, but that amount of good, sound, restful sleep night after night Our power to work is intimately related to our ability to sleep, and there is no more reliable indication of sound health than the capacity to sleep naturally, and the more active and energetic the waking life the deeper the sleep.

Cleanse the blood, the bowels and the liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel—there's never any sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with "a dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints, and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result.

Take one or two nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

DON'T FUSS WITH MUSTARD PLASTERS!

Musterole Works Easier, Quicker and Without the Blister

There's no sense in mixing a mess of mustard, flour and water when you can easily relieve pain, soreness or stiffness with a little clean, white Musterole.

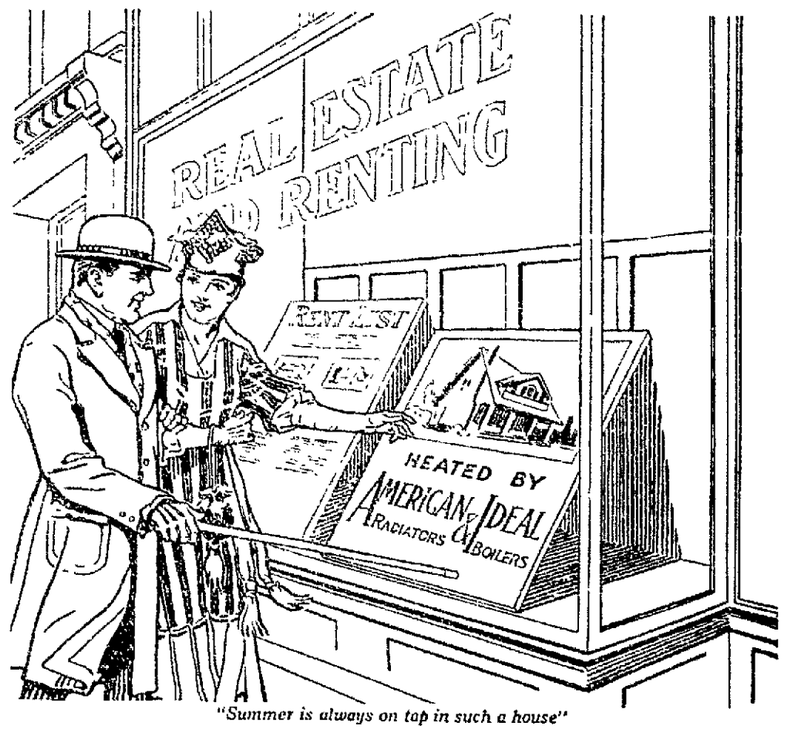
Musterole is made of pure oil of mustard and other helpful ingredients, combined in the form of a pleasant white ointment. It takes the place of out-of-date mustard plasters, and will not blister.

Musterole usually gives prompt relief from sore throat, bronchitis, tonsilitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, cold of the chest (it often prevents pneumonia).

MUSTEROLE

Ideal heat attracts good tenants

No one will long live in a poorly heated house, and the vacant house fast goes to pieces. There's genuine home-making in IDEAL-AMERICAN heating that is proved by the demand of thousands of renters who prefer to pay 15 percent or more rental for this guaranteed comfort, cleanliness, fuel economy and freedom from repairs and drudgery. The living, renting and sales value of any building, small or large, is greatly increased by an outfit of



"Summer is always on tap in such a house"

AMERICAN RADIATORS & IDEAL BOILERS

IDEAL AMERICAN heating outfits saved millions in coal waste last winter

Both IDEAL Boilers and AMERICAN Radiators will give wonderful service every year as long as the building stands. Made of non-rusting, ever-wearing cast iron sections which can be installed anywhere without tearing out doorways, walls or partitions. IDEAL Boiler does not require expensive excavation or brick-setting. If building is altered or enlarged the boiler and radiators may have extra sections added easily. Did you ever see a second-hand IDEAL Boiler or AMERICAN Radiator? And you never will! They're always like new. Fully guaranteed!

IDEAL Boilers have large fuel pot in which the air and coal gases thoroughly mix as in a modern gas or oil mantle or burner, thus extracting every bit of the heat from the fuel. Easier to run than a stove.

Look, before you lease, for Ideal heating!

Don't discount your new home or let your present building get behind the times for lack of this heating outfit. No other feature of a building yields equal returns—in fuel savings, absence of repairs, household cleanliness, and least care-taking.

If you are weary of everlasting blackening, repairing and coaxing, discard at once the old way and put in an IDEAL-AMERICAN outfit at this season, when you get best attention of most skilled fitters. Send for free booklet—"Ideal Heating" which explains how to get full returns from every heating coal bill.

The Black Watch.

In 1730 six companies of Highlanders were raised for the protection of Edinburgh and the following year were consolidated into a regular regiment, the Highland regiment, and were numbered the Forty-second. On becoming amalgamated the colors on their tartans were extracted, leaving only the dark green ground as a tartan, and from this they took the title of the "Black Watch."—New York American.

has been reported the crews inflicted on them when diplomatic relations were severed with Germany, were begun.

In New York and Boston, regular troops were added to the force of several hundred immigration and quarantine squad men on guard at the ships, and assisted in the removal of the crews. The seizures were timed to a fine exactitude and were made at an hour when most of the crews and officers were asleep.

McAdoo's Explanation.

The following statement has been issued by Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo under whose jurisdiction the operations of the customs agents fall:

"For the purpose of protecting the vessels from further injury and until a decision can be reached as to their proper disposition, customs guards have been placed on board all German merchant vessels anchored in the ports of the United States.

"The officers and crews have been taken into custody by the department of justice pending a determination of their status."

Reports to the treasury department confirm statement that virtually every ship has been disabled. The extent of the damage will be determined as speedily as possible.

May Be Requisitioned.

There are some indications the vessel will be requisitioned by the government for trans Atlantic trade or as naval auxiliaries for at least the period of war. Official asserted today that this point was still under deliberation but that an "intelligent use" would be made of the vessels. So far as the owners' rights in the vessels are concerned it was said, this country will scrupulously observe them.

It was officially announced that in the case of the Liebenfels, the German merchantman sunk in Charleston (S. C.) harbor upon the severance of diplomatic relations the damage was not great. In the case of the Kronprinzessin Cecelia, under the jurisdiction of the federal court at Boston, the damage done the vessel's machinery was so extensive as to make her unseaworthy for months.

Possible Disposition.

The seizure, according to official statement of the state department today, are measures of safety for the ships themselves and adjoining property. The crews aboard are regarded as German reservists on German territory.

The further question of what is to be done with the fleet now comes up for consideration. Two courses, it was said, are open to the government. The ships may be impressed into service and paid for at the end of the war or they may be confiscated altogether without violating the terms of the Prussian American treaty of 1828. Many official oppose the latter course unless it should be decided to take it upon the principle of taking a ship for every American ship destroyed illegally by a submarine.

The first step now, at any rate, probably will be to repair the damage done to the machinery of the ships by their crews on orders of the German government when diplomatic relations were severed.

CONSTIPATION PILES AND HEMORRHOIDS

A DISCOVERY HAS BEEN MADE THAT IS A BOON TO SUFFERERS OF CONSTIPATION, PILES AND HEMORRHOIDS—IT HAS BENEFITED HUNDREDS—IT WILL BENEFIT YOU.

It is a well known fact that Piles, Hemorrhoids and troubles of that kind, as a rule, have their origin in constipation. Look back to the time you first noticed the disagreeable, painful feeling that pile sufferers know only too well. The bowels were constipated. Cathartics were used almost incessantly.

The origin of constipation can be traced to indigestion in almost every instance. The food, instead of digesting properly, passes out of the stomach in an undigested, non-assimilative condition. In this form it enters the bowels, clogs them and constipates.

A systematic digestion of your food will prevent constipation. Many take cathartics for this trouble, when it would be far better to go to the seat of the trouble, the stomach. Pepsinco the perfect digestant, is used by thousands and has proven a boon to hundreds of sufferers of constipation, piles and hemorrhoids, because it has been demonstrated to be the only logical method of regulating the bowels.

Pepsinco acts upon the food as it enters the stomach, preparing it for assimilation quickly and surely. It is a well known fact that well digested food will never constipate. It is equally well known that undigested food does constipate, therefore, the logical method of curing constipation is the perfect digestion of the food as it enters the stomach

If you have Piles; if you have Hemorrhoids; we would suggest that you go at once to the drug store and get a small package of Pepsinco, which will regulate your bowels and cure your piles and hemorrhoids. All druggists carry Pepsinco. It is inexpensive and easy to take.

QUIT MEAT IF YOUR BACK HURTS, FLUSH YOUR KIDNEYS WITH SALTS

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels, removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatism twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive can not injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia water drink

The military training stunt has spread to the Southern league, Memphis intending to adopt it at once with national guardsmen drilling

ORBITS OF THE PLANETS.

Why They Are Eclipses and Cannot Become Perfect Circles.

Every ellipse has two foci. Kepler's second law is, "The orbits of all of the planets are ellipses the sun being in one common focus of them all." All of the other foci are empty space. The eccentricities of orbits of all planets vary on account of the attraction of all the other planets making variations. Some are decreasing while others are increasing, but none can ever become exact circles since there are eight mutually disturbing planets

That of the earth's orbit is now decreasing and, according to the French astronomer Leverrier, who took time to make elaborate mathematical researches in this part of astronomy, will continue to decrease during about 21,000 years, but will not vanish, making the earth's orbit an exact circle, and then will begin to increase

The orbit of Venus now has the least eccentricity and is therefore nearer a true circle than any other orbit, but it cannot become a circle, one reason being the disturbance caused by the huge mass of the earth. One earth revolving around one sun, both millions of miles away from any other disturbing, could traverse a true circle.—Edgar Lucien Larkin in New York American.

Public Elopements.

The Bulgarian is perhaps the most simple minded and industrious peasant in Europe, and, paradoxical as it may appear, his standard of morality is extremely high, although elopements are more numerous than in any other country. But these are generally innocent affairs, being simply the device of young couples to get married without the expense a regular Bulgarian wedding entails. In most case not only is the consent of both parents obtained, but all friends are informed and assemble outside the bride's house to witness the elopement.

MAKING IT PLAIN

The Pure Food and Drug Laws aim to protect the public by preventing mis-statements on the labels of preparations but some people continue to accept "extracts" of cod livers thinking they will get the benefits of an emulsion of cod liver oil.

The difference is very great. An "emulsion" contains real cod liver oil, which has had the hearty endorsement of the medical profession for many years, while an "extract" is a product which contains no oil and is highly alcoholic.

Scott's Emulsion guarantees the highest grade of real Norwegian cod liver oil, skilfully blended with glycerine and hypophosphites. Scott's is free from the false stimulation of alcohol and is endorsed by good physicians everywhere.

To Save and Have Beautiful Hair

The best thing to use is kreamol, a liquid which you can get at almost any drug store.

A small amount, only one or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly.

Simply moisten the hair with water, rub in a little of kreamol, massage well and then rinse in clean water. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and removes the dust, dirt and dandruff.

Do not use cheap soap or cheaply prepared shampoos if you want to keep your scalp clean and the hair soft and beautiful.

You will find kreamol very inexpensive as a four ounce bottle will be sufficient to last every one in the family many weeks.—Adv.

A Race at the Aero Club

By ESTHER VANDEVEER

Down at Wellington they've got the aeroplane craze. There's a concern that has made a machine with a lot of safety appliances that is especially fitted for amateur aeronauts The women have taken up the fad the same as the men. They've organized a club, with first rate starting grounds, and, although it's all brand new, there are a dozen members who own their machines, and in good weather some of them are flying all the while. Those who haven't aeroplanes sit on the clubhouse porch with opera glasses in their hands watching the fliers and flirting.

A race between two individuals, Beverly Yorke and Jim Springer, took place not long ago, on which there was a lot of money placed. It wasn't a fair race, but there was nothing that came within the rules as being foul.

A 200 mile course was laid out, starting from the clubhouse. It first went to Arlington, then south to Jonesville, then southeast to Merryman, then northeast to Hilton, then straight west to Barrington, then to the clubhouse The fliers were to go over a certain church spire in each town, except Jonesville, where there was a big factory, and they were to pass above the 200 foot chimney that belonged to it. Yorke was to start westward and Springer eastward. The one who got back to the clubhouse first was to be declared the winner. As to the fliers observing all the rules, this was secured by a club member being stationed at the different points they were to pass over.

The machines, being merely for pleasure, were not especially powerful. There were machines with strong engines in the club, but this race was limited to the pleasure class. It wasn't expected that the race would be made in less than three hours. At 10 o'clock the club grounds were full of members and guests to see the race, and a number of machines were flying about, dashing hither and thither, rising, ducking and doing different stunts.

One of these belonged to Kate Winterton, who in the air topped every other woman member for flying and on terra firma topped them all for flirting. She had every man in the club by the ears, and it was generally conceded that when she undertook to bring a man to his marrowbones he might as well come down at once.

Yorke was the favorite at odds of five to four. At least these were the odds up to the day before the race. But that night they suddenly changed to two to one on Springer. The queer thing about it was that no one could find out why this change should have come about. There were rumors about Yorke not being in a condition to race or his machine having been found wanting in some particular, but they were nothing but rumors and were looked upon as mere jockeying for odds.

At 11 o'clock the two machines were rolled out on the starting grounds, the one pointed west, the other east. The racers took their seats, and half a dozen men did the starting for each machine at the same moment. As they rose the aeroplanes that were tilting about to see the fun started off in different directions, either to intercept the racers or to take some central point where they hoped to keep the machines in sight by means of glasses.

Kate Winterton's last victim was Jim Springer. She had been seen on the clubhouse porch during the evening before the race spooning with him, and it was expected by their observers that she would keep in touch with him in the contest to encourage him. But in this they were disappointed. She followed neither of the fliers, hovering over the club grounds and by signs communicating with those below how the race was going. When the racers had been out a couple of hours she was seen to fly away in the direction of Merryman and was soon out of sight.

When she came within seeing distance of the fliers they had met and Yorke had passed the halfway point greatly ahead of Springer. Kate made a bee line for Yorke, who had started westward and was nearing Hilton. He had met his opponent so far ahead of the point he should have been and felt so certain of winning that he was not pressing his machine. Kate sailed up within hearing distance.

"Oh, Mr. Yorke," she called, "I'm so glad!"

"Glad about what?"

"You're going to win."

"That's very nice of you."

They sailed along in company for awhile when something seemed to go wrong with Kate's machine. It careened first on one side, then on the other.

"I'm afraid I'm going to fall!" she cried in a voice of terror, and, true enough, she went down rapidly till she struck the earth, but managed her machine so well that there was no absolute drop. Yorke was too much of a man to leave her in distress and followed her, finding her lying on the ground beside her machine in a state of collapse.

Well, to make a long story short, Kate kept him ministering to injuries that were not serious till he had lost the race. But he came out ahead in the game of love if he lost the race. He refused to say a word about what Kate confessed was a frame up, remunerating those who had lost money backing him and otherwise showing that he was a thoroughbred. This won over Kate, and instead of Yorke tumbling to her she tumbled to him.

Germany will be notified of this nation's action by the Spanish ambassador in Berlin, who now represents the United States in Germany.

"Selective Draft."

The military policy of the government for the present will be the volunteer plan that has been followed since the nation's birth But the President made it clear in his appeal that a form of "selective draft," such as is contained in the general staff bill now before congress, will be resorted to when the volunteering begins to slack up.

President Wilson gave strong warning in his proclamation to "alien enemies" of the United States, living within our borders. Under the power vested in him he decreed in his proclamation that any unnaturalled citizen of a nation with which the United States is at war shall be drastically dealt with if he attempts to set afoot any conspiracy or intrigue against the United States

Unnaturilized Germans are forbidden to carry any arms of any kind within the boundaries of the nation; they are forbidden to make threats or agitate against the government or its officers and are cautioned against approaching within one half mile of any fortification or military establishment.

War Proclamation.

The text of the proclamation is found in the paragraph that reads as follows:

"Now, therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States of America, do hereby proclaim to all whom it may concern that a state of war exists between the United States and the Imperial German government, and I do specially direct all officers, civil or military, of the United States that they exercise vigilance and zeal in their discharge of the duties incident to such a state of war; and I do, moreover, earnestly appeal to all American citizens that they, in loyal devotion to their country, dedicated from its foundation to the principles of liberty and justice, uphold the laws of the land and give undivided and willing support to those measures which may be adopted by the constitutional authorities in prosecuting the war to a successful issue and in obtaining a secure and just peace

Notice To Aliens.

"And, acting under and by virtue of the authority vested in me by the constitution of the United States and the said sections of the revised statutes, I do hereby further proclaim and direct that the conduct to be observed on the part of the United States towards all natives, citizens, denizens or subjects of Germany, being males of the age of 14 years and upwards, who shall be within the United SEtates and not actually naturalized who for the purpose of this proclamation and under such sections of the revised statutes are termed alien, enemies, shall be as follows:

"All alien enemies are enjoined to preserve the peace towards the United States and to refrain from crime against the public safety and from violating the laws of the United States and of the states and territories thereof and to refrain from actual hostility or giving information aid or comfort to the enemies of the United States and to comply strictly with the regulations promulgated by the President, and so long as they shall conduct themselves in accordance with the law they shall be undisturbed in the peaceful pursuit of their lives and occupations and be accorded the consideration due to all peaceful and law-abiding persons, except so far as restrictions may be necessary for their own protection and of the safety of the United States and towards such alient enemies as conduct themselves in accordance with law, all citizens of the United States are enjoined to preserve the peace and to treat them with all such friendliness as may be compatible with loyalty and allegiance to the United States

"And all aleint enemes who fail to conduct themselves as so enjoined, in addition to all other penalties prescribed by law, shall be liable to restraint, or to give security, or to remove and depart from the United States."

After setting forth twelve rules for all aliens to observe, the President concludes his proclamation as follows:

"This proclamation and the regulations herein contained shall extend and apply to all land and water, continental or insular, in any way within the jurisdiction o fthe United States.

"In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand, and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed

"Done at the City of Washington, this sixth day of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and seventeen, and of the Independence of the United States, the one hundred and forty first.

"WOODROW WILSON,

"By the President

Robert Lansing, Sec'y of State."

Board Of Agriculture Makes Official Report On Condition Of Crops

The following report is compiled from returns received from official correspondents of the department:

WHEAT—Condition compared with average ..... 80 percent
Crop of 1916 still in producers' hands ..... 10 percent.
Weeks of snow protection 5 weeks.
WINTER BARLEY—Condition compared with average ..... 95 percent.
RYE—Condition compared with average ..... 82 percent.
CORN—Condition in crib compared with average ..... 94 percent.
Remaining unhusked in field 8 percent.
Damage to unhusked in field 12 pct.
Damage to fodder during winter 21 pct.
FRUIT—Prospect compared with normal yield ..... 77 percent.
Buds winter killed ..... 32 percent.

Average Prices.

Wheat per bushel	1 93
Corn per bushel	1.19
Barley per bushel	1.14
Oats per bushel	.66
Rye per bushel	1.33
Potatoes per bushel	2.84
Hay per ton	11.79

As stated in previous reports, wheat seeding was very late owing to the continued drouth and on the setting in of winter it was found the plant had not attained strong set and sufficient growth to withstand the rigid winter. However, the winter on the whole was quite favorable. While there was much severe cold weather, and no doubt some killing by being frozen, there was no alternate freezing and thawing to upheave the wheat roots and there was a fair amount of snow protection during the needed periods. The wheat roots remained in the ground, and while the tops did not show early green and strength, there may be sufficient root vitality to bring out fields that now are brown and seem winter killed.

On March 1, from general appearance, the wheat condition was estimated at 72 per cent. of an average, but it was believed then that under fair weather conditionst an improvemen would be shown in the next two months. Conditions have not been unfavorable, and the plant has shown an improvement of eight points, being now reported at 80 per cent, of an average. Wheat that has not been absolutely killed ought now to go rapidly forward and it can very soon be determined that which it will be profitable to plow up.

Corn in the crib is in good condition, with very little complain of mold Corn was generally cribbed in excellent condition last fall, being well dried out. But a small amount of corn remained in the fields over winter, as the open weather permitted husking most of the crop.

The fruit buds, winter killed applies most wholly to peaches, plums and cherries, and on these the judgment of corespondents varies somewhat. No doubt there has been some killing of the fruit buds, but the extent cannot be fully determined at this time because conditions vary greatly even in immediate localities.

The labor problem is still a serious one with farmers, as most young men prefer the city shops and factories to farm labor Experienced farm labor scarce and wages correspondingly high.

LEST WE FORGET

The die has been cast and the American people, by the act of their president and representatives in the two houses of congress, stand committed to war on Germany.

Whether we have made the wise choice only the future can tell. We still believe it would have been better, both for the present and future, to have let the people, rather than congress, to have sealed their own fate.

We are going into war, so it is said, on a high plane. We are told by the president and those who have urged us into it, that it is not a war of conquest; that we want no other nation's territory, that we are not the enemies of the German people; that we are not animated by hatred of any European people; that we are simply striving to uphold democracy at home and advance it abroad; in short, to save the world, and Germany along with it, from "Prussianism," meaning autocratic government.

The Tribune sincerely hopes that this is all true. It hopes that by casting the weight of America into the balance the end will come quickly and democracy will indeed, be advanced among all the nations of the earth.

But we hope the zeal of the war enthusiasts, here at home and in every town and city and hamlet all over this broad land of ours, will not wane as the fighting progresses. We have heard much of high prices and the lack of this and that, and of many forms of domestic and bodily discomfort due to the war abroad.

But the high prices of the past, the bodily discomforts we have borne for the last year and a half will be enchanced, not lessened, by our entrance into the great conflict. If the war enthusiasts are right, if human freedom is to be advanced by the spilling of the blood of our young men on the plains of Europe, The Tribune is just as ready for the sacrifice as anyone dare be. But we can't eat our cake and have it. We can't forsake our farms and mines and mills and factories and expect cheap food and plenty of it, good clothing and to spare, the blessings we are are told that will follow our entrance into the war maelstrom and the placid routine of our old lives uninterrupted by the flow of world events.

We are prompted to mention these things because experience has taught us that some of those who are most vociferous for war now will sing a different tune before two, or even one, year more of strife has been registered in the files of history.

It is true the lives of those of us whose homes are in the great interior basin of the United States will not outwardly be affected by the stirring events abroad. But at that there are certain things we should not forget.

Here is one of them. Those who are clamoring for war, either on account of racial ties or because they honestly believe Germany to be in the wrong, should remember that there are other American citizens, citizens of German birth whose homes border ours and whose lot is cast with us for weal or woe.

Only a coward will indulge in German baiting. A German citizen's heart is bound to the Fatherland by ties of language, custom and deepest sympathy. Whatever his lips may be forced to say, his heart is with his own ancestors and relatives and friends. A mob may force him to do homage to England or Russia in audible words, but in his heart, never. And just men, men who are really desirous of seeing the cause of democratic institutions advanced will respect every other man's feelings, no matter of what land or clime or nationality. Decency and reasonable regard for another man's feeling is of the essence of democracy and vital to that degree of personal liberty vouchsafed to all men by the Declaration of Independence.

On the other hand, German-Americans should exercise the same discretion they ask of others. The largest single foreign strain in our national make-up is Teutonic. Up until two decades ago the bulk of our immigration was Teutonic.

What prompted this vast influx of the German races? Ask any German above forty years of age and he will quickly tell you. PEOPLE CAME LITERALLY BY THE MILLIONS TO ESCAPE THE VERY THING WE FEAR TOO MANY OF THEM NOW ARE UNTHINKINGLY UPHOLDING—THEY CAME TO ESCAPE MILITARY CONSCRIPTION. THEY CAME TO GET RID OF DESPOTISM AND MILITARY AUTOCRACY AND TO ENJOY THE CIVIL AND POLITICAL BLESSINGS IN AMERICA THAT THE GERMAN PEOPLE NEVER HAD THE MORAL HARDIHOOD TO WIN FOR THEMSELVES AT HOME.

There can be no denying this fact. Aside from the feeble revolution of 1848, there has never been a hand uplifted in Germany against the thing at which the whole world now revolts. Following that attempted and unsuccessful revolution, hundreds of thousands of Germans came to America to escape the thing they admitted was too strong for them to overcome.

It is for this reason that we cannot believe that Germans of the older stock, or even more recent comers will hesitate long in choosing between this country and the Fatherland, now that the regrettable clash has come.

Every sensible American must recognize and respect a German's love for the Fatherland. All of us are foreigners by parentage. But as between Germany and America we do not believe there is any considerable number of Germans who will be long in choosing—they will stand with the land of their adoption.

And at this stage of the game, if there are Germans here who still prefer Germany with her military conscription, her Junkers, her landed overlords, her denial of the principles for which our fathers fought in 1776 and theirs in 1848, then such German-Americans are not Americans at all and should have left this country long ago.

This paper has believed from the start, and has not been slow to say that the houses of Hohenzollern and Hapsburg, the two reigning dynasties in Germany and Austria-Hungary, have been directly responsible for the outbreak of the present war. There is no question as to where the trail of blood leads directly.

But we have also said that indirectly, far beneath the surface, there are causes for this awful conflagration for which not Germany alone, not Austria alone, not England alone, but every civilized nation in the world, is responsible. These causes are partly of Germany's creation, partly of England's. BUT NOT LEAST IN BLOOD GUILT IS THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

We are damning the war party in Germany for bringing on the war. But if there is a just God above, when the final judgment is pronounced, America will not be found faultless.

We know this is not popular talk, but this paper was not founded to say popular things. It has been its mission as best it can, to tell the truth, and naturally such a course has been calculated to raise up enemies, influential enemies, enemies in the counting room, among the legal fraternity and last, but not least of all, in the pulpit itself, among men who claim to be followers of the Prince of Peace and yet are now crying from the housetops for war, for the blood of their fellowmen and in the name of the gentle Christ are denouncing their fellowmen across the seas.

With all this false teaching it is not strange that this poor old world of ours has turned topsy-turvy. Those to whom we go for wisdom and from whom we have the right to expect the counsel of sanity and love, are foremost in spreading the mad contagion which is sweeping such civilization as we have reared into the vortex of ruin and despair.

So, we who are living in as fragile a glass house as any other nation should go slow in denunciation and invective. The best proof we can give now of our sanity and boasted superiority over other nations is to speak with moderation; to have a decent regard for other men's views; to let charity and good will and broad-mindedness be our distinguishing characteristics instead of reviling and hatred and prejudice.

And if fate shall lead our young men into the war-pits of Europe, IT SHOULD BE WITH THE REALIZATION THAT NINE OUT OF TEN WILL NEVER RETURN. It is our guess that just beneath the surface over there, there is an intense and growing hatred of the war they all started into so blithely. And if our boys are sent there to help end this thing in the name of "democracy," we may rest assured they will be given their full share of the fighting. There will be no false modesty on the part of England and France in restraining them from going to the front.

If they go, there will be plenty of mothers in America, some of them here in Coshocton, before another year shall have passed who will have tasted war to the dregs and will pronounce the taste not pleasant.

Nor would we have anyone infer from this that the horrors of war should keep us out, if it be our duty to get in. We simply believe we should not have gone in in the present instance without the voice of the people themselves being heard.

If it is a fight for democracy, we should have made the first application of our boasted principle here at home. The issue should have been freely and truthfully presented to our people. They could have been trusted to decide aright. We let them decide other issues much more complicated than the simple issue of war or no war. In the end they decide most of them right. BUT RIGHT OR WRONG, THE DECISION SHOULD HAVE BEEN THEIRS.

Now that the die is cast the suffering is surely theirs. The blood that will be spilled will be theirs. The grievous burden of taxes will fall upon their shoulders. Vacant chairs, broken homes, mothers' hearts torn with unnamable grief will be theirs. Yet they have not been consulted in the most momentous problem this people has ever been called on to decide. The nearest we have heard from the people was in the last general election when a president was re-elected, saved from what at the outset seemed certain defeat, solely on the plea that "He Kept Us Out of War!"

Yet all of this was barely five months ago. But so swift has been the movement of great events that we have perhaps allowed ourselves to be swept clear off our feet by the very elements of our population that then clamored for war!

We are not crying for the milk that has been spilled. While the people certainly have not chosen, they at least have allowed the leather-lunged patriots to decide for them and we hope the patriotism of the latter will not ooze out before we have gotten fairly well into this thing. Be the job good or bad, we have got to see it thru as a people, a people united, a people standing together, ONE.

We would close with this suggestion: We are divided on the wisdom of the choice made for us by the president and congress. Such divisions are always bound to come. Where it is possible, we should get the judgment of the majority and, having obtained that, abide by it until the wisdom of the majority is clearly disproved. But when we cannot agree on the verdicts of majority or minority, we should not forget one utterance which has stood the test of all time, which embodies a creed for Europe and America alike and which, had it been given more consideration years ago by the bleeding nations of Europe would have saved the present catastrophe. We refer to the words of Him who said:

"For as you would that men should do unto you, do you even so unto them."

DISTINCTION

BY WALT MASON

But little time has jaunted by, since he who owned a motor car had won distinction fair and high; we all admired him from afar. We may have said, when, in his pride, he followed his triumphant way, that he was putting on more side than one frail mortal should display. But we admired him, just the same, and raised our lids at his approach, for he had scaled the heights of fame who owned so glittering a coach. But now the man who has no car creates excitement in our town, he is unique; so few there are who do not hold their motors down. Men say of him, "I'll bet my hat he likes a car, as much as we; but he would raise a tinhorn bid for cheap john notoriety. He'll run for alderman this year, and try to get the public vote, by claiming he's the one man here who does not own or drive a boat." The Tattooed Man has had his day, the Bearded Lady's lost her goat, the Dog-faced Boy must now make way for him who doesn't own a boat.

THE SPECTRE

Last night when I had gone to rest, a ghost came to my side; it was the most astounding ghost that ever man espied; it wouldn't go at my behest, but watched me, fiery-eyed. Before last night I used to scoff at ghostly things of dread; I laughed to scorn the timid toff who said he'd heard their tread, and told him where he might get off, and where to soak his head. But, oh, the horror of last night I shall not soon forget! I lay and oozed in mortal fright and oozed all kinds of sweat; that ghost [illegible] with bluish light, was something fierce, you bet. How [illegible] was there I do not know—it seemed to me ten years—[illegible] my soul I felt the flow of grim and icy fears; at last [illegible] phantom go, back to its misty spheres. Then I arose [illegible] By heck, no more will I eat pie, no more consume of [illegible] ale, or [illegible] my couch I hie; I'd surely be a mental [illegible] [illegible] sight!"

DENIES REPORTS

Newcomerstown, O., April 4, 1917.
Coshocton Morning Tribune,
Coshocton, Ohio
Sirs:

Would you kindly correct statement in respect to the Lutheran minister as it appeared in your issue of today?

I wish to say that every statement in that article pertaining to the Lutherans and their pastor is absolutely false and is made out of whole cloth. The minister did not preach his farewell sermon last Sunday, nor make any mention whatever of the German people in any way whatsoever. neither did any of his congregation leave the services during the preaching hour. The pastor has resigned to accept a unanimous call to the First Lutheran church of Galion, Ohio, and leaves amidst the great regret of his people as well as the public in general. No pastor has left the Lutheran church during the past 40 years with a greater respect and good will or leaves the churches more united than does the retiring Pastor.

Yours truly,
O. C. KRAMER.

"Your wife has filed suit for divorce. Are you going to contest it?"

"No. It wouldn't do me any good. I've lost every argument I ever had with her."—Exchange.

The House On the Hill

By PAULINE D. EDWARDS

A girl was pacing the hall of a country house impatiently. Presently she stopped and called:

"Come, Molly; the auto's waiting."

"All right, Imogen; I'll be with you as soon as I can tie on my veil. Have you your goggles?"

"Goggles? No! Do you suppose I would make myself hideous by wearing such things?"

Imogen went out to the plazza, where at the foot of the steps the automobile was waiting, and said to the chauffeur.

"You needn't go today, William. I'm going to drive myself."

"Yes, miss."

"Is everything all right?"

"Yes, miss."

"Come, Molly; let's be off."

Molly came hurrying out, trying to adjust a veil and pull on a pair of gloves at the same time, a somewhat difficult feat to perform. The two got into the auto, and the machine chugged down the driveway to the gate. It was a mild spring morning, and the roads were fine. Imogen was quite an expert driver, and there was nothing to mar the pleasure of the trip till they had been out a couple of hours and were some thirty miles from home. Then one of the tires subsided and let the wheel to which it belonged down on to the ground.

"Oh, dear!" exclaimed Molly. "What shall we do?"

"There's a shed or stable or something over there; let's go over and see if we can get any help."

Having placed the auto on the side of the road, they both walked the hundred yards that separated them from the house and found a man in overalls tinkering with an automobile.

"Oh, how fortunate!" exclaimed Molly. "It's a garage."

"We've got a puncture or something," said Imogen to the man. "We've left our auto out there in the road. Would you mind coming out to see what's the matter?"

The man left his work, went with them to their auto, inspected the wheel and said:

"It's not a case of puncture. There's a rip in the tire."

"Oh, dear!" exclaimed Imogen. "Can it be mended?"

"Not here. I haven't the tools."

"What shall we do?"

"I'll put enough wind in it to get your machine into my garage, and there it must be left till you can get another tire. I see you have no 'extra.'"

The man managed after much difficulty to get the auto into the garage. Then he said to them:

"I will take you to your home, and you can send some one out with an extra tire to take your auto back."

"Do you think that's the only thing to do?"

"Yes. Please wait till I go to the house and get off these overalls. I'll be back in a moment."

He went up a by-road and disappeared. The two girls occupied themselves looking at an imposing mansion on the top of a hill, at the foot of which they waited.

"That's a fine house," said Imogen. "I wouldn't mind being at the head of that house—that is, if I had a husband to be"—

"At the foot," supplied Molly.

In a few moments the man returned in chauffeur costume.

"I should think you'd be hungry," he said. "It's past lunch time, and you'll not get home before 3 o'clock. Perhaps you'd better go up to that summer hotel," pointing to the house they had been admiring, "and get something to eat. It's not yet opened for the season, but I think you'll find something to stay your appetite."

"What a beautiful site for a hotel!" exclaimed Imogen. "We thought it a private house."

They climbed the hill, were admitted by a maid in white and black uniform and shown into a dining room having none of the appearance of one belonging to a hotel. There a delicious luncheon was served. On attempting to pay for it the maid said that there was no one in the house to receive cash and they would have to pay another time.

"We'll leave it with the man at the garage down there," said Imogen.

"Yes, miss," the girl assented.

Returning to the garage, they found the man waiting for them with an auto ready. They entered it and started for home. On the way home the chauffeur became more communicative, and Imogen remarked sotto voce to Molly that he used very good language for an auto tinker. When they reached the house Imogen took out her pocketbook, asking him how much his charges would be, including the luncheon.

The chauffeur replied that there was no charge for the ride; on the contrary, he had been much honored. As for the luncheon, he owned the house in which they had lunched, and in this, too, they had honored him.

The girls looked at each other in consternation.

"But you said," Imogen protested, "that the house was a summer hotel."

"I lied there," said the man imperturbably.

The three sat regarding one another for a few moments, then burst out laughing.

"Pardon me" said the chauffeur. "I couldn't help it. You walked right into your own trap."

That was some years ago. Today Imogen is at the head of the house on the hill, and the gentleman chauffeur is at the foot of it.

PUBLIC SALE

A Peddling Partnership

By WARREN MILLER

Johnny Cosgrove, millionaire, determined to marry a girl who didn't know he was rich and at the same time a person of intrinsic worth.

John was fond of an outdoor life, and his plan was influenced by this taste. He concluded to rig himself up as a peddler, travel through the country selling such articles as women need and thus make the acquaintance of some girl whom he could study incognito. He bought an auto delivery wagon and stocked it with tin pans, pins and needles, hosiery, shoes, gridirons and every article he could think of that a woman would want.

It was a bright spring morning when John's loaded auto was brought up before his house by his man Thomas, whom he had charged with procuring the outfit, and John, rigged out in a ready made suit he had bought at a cheap clothing store and a faded straw hat, sallied forth and, taking the wheel, started on his tour.

"If I don't get a wife," he said to himself, "I'll at least enjoy myself." Then aloud to Thomas, "Forward to day's mail to Waverly to Martin Irvine. I'll keep you posted where to send it from that on."

Johnny drove off, and a window sash on the opposite side of the street was closed at the same time. A few minutes later a girl emerged from a front door beneath the aforesaid window and hurried down the street.

Johnny struck the road to Waverly, then began to stop at houses along the way. He chaffed the wives, chucked the children under the chin and otherwise made himself agreeable. The consequence was that he sold his goods readily, though he generally made his prices to suit purchasers. When night came he put up at the only hotel in Waverly.

In the morning he breakfasted—on spring chicken—and after the arrival of the mail started again on his travels. He had not gone far before he heard the rattling of a machine behind him and pulled out to the right to let it go by. As it did so Johnny saw that its rear was got up to hold a sewing machine which was strapped down and the car was driven by a young woman, comely, though plainly dressed, who called to him to know if the road held good and for how long. Johnny gave her the information she desired, and the two fell into conversation. The girl told Johnny that she was a sewing machine traveling agent. She also informed him that her father was comfortably off in this world's goods, but she didn't propose to sit around waiting for a husband and must have occupation.

"By Jove," exclaimed Johnny to himself, "that's the kind of girl I'm looking for!"

John kept on one side of the road, the girl on the other, the two moving side by side except when vehicles passed, at which time John fell behind.

"I wish," said John to her after awhile, "that we could make a double team of it, a joint stock concern, to take in peddler's goods and sewing machines."

"Oh, we couldn't do that," said the girl, who gave her name as Molly Sparks, "though I'd like to ever so much. I sometimes feel afraid traveling on lonely roads."

"What's the objection to a partnership?" asked John.

"I don't think it would be exactly proper. People would take us for man and wife, and when they found we were not they'd talk."

John thought awhile, then proposed that they should lay out a route together for the next day, the girl to put her sewing machine in his motorcar. They would stop for the night at different hotels, but travel together during the day. The girl, with apparent reluctance, assented to the plan, and the next day they carried it out. But they paid more attention to each other than to peddling.

This method of travel now kept up until John was satisfied that he might go farther and fare worse. The girl was far above the ordinary country lass, and John saw an advantage in marrying in his own class. He proposed to her, but at first was refused on the ground that if she married a peddler her family would disown her. But John was bent on winning her and finally got her consent to marry him without saying anything about it at home. They could then travel together with more propriety.

They were married at a country church and by a country parson, and after the wedding John said they must have a rest from work and they must go to his home for awhile in the city. His bride consented, and he took her to his palatial residence.

John looked at his bride, expecting to see astonishment depicted in her face. Instead, she laid aside her wraps as if she had always lived there.

"Didn't you think you were marrying a peddler?" he asked in wonder.

"No, I didn't. I knew I was marrying Johnny Cosgrove, millionaire."

"How did you know that?" asked John, aghast.

"I live a few doors down the street and have often seen you, though you didn't know me. I saw you drive away as a peddler. I didn't know what you were going for, but I thought it would be a good chance to go for you and rake you in."

"Stung!" said Johnny.

"No, you're not. I've got money of my own. I knew you were a good catch and thought I'd snare you, that's all. I'll make you a loving wife."

And she did.

THE STATE OF FRANKLIN.

It Had a Short Life In What Is Now Eastern Tennessee.

In 1784 North Carolina, growing impatient of the burden that her western settlements had imposed upon her treasury and irritated by the complaints of the people of those sections, passed an act conveying to the federal government all the lands that now constitute the state of Tennessee.

The people of the country that is now eastern Tennessee, feeling themselves left without a government, made haste to organize themselves into an independent commonwealth, which they called, as a tribute to the illustrious philosopher, the state of Franklin. These people applied for admission into the Union; but, the federal government being slow and unwilling to act and North Carolina having repealed the act of cession of her western province to the Union, the state of Franklin came into very troubled waters for some years.

Some efforts were made to persuade the Kentuckians to join themselves to the state of Franklin, a provision having been made for such co operation in the constitution of the experiment, but they came to nothing. The new state gradually fell to pieces, and in 1787 its brilliant and able governor, John Sevier, was put on trial for high treason. He was released by a daring rescue and subsequently pardoned and restored in name to the leadership, which he never lost in the affections of his people. In 1787 the last legislature of the state of Franklin held its session at Greenville.—Philadelphia Press.

Napoleon's Confidence.

Just before his marriage Napoleon received the appointment of commander in chief of the army of Italy. He was then twenty-six. "You are rather young," said one of the directors, "to assume responsibility so weighty and to take command over veteran generals."

"In one year," Napoleon replied, "I shall be old or dead."

"We can place you in command of men only," said Carnot, "for the troops are in need of everything, and we can furnish you with no money to provide supplies."

"Give me only men enough," Napoleon answered, "and I ask for nothing more; I will be answerable for the result."—"Table Talk and Opinions of Napoleon Buonaparte."

BREVITY OF ENGLISH.

Its Advantage In This Respect Over French and German.

In an international report, printed in parallel columns in French, German and English, the three versions being exact translations of each other, the English report invariably finished first; sometimes it won by a whole page. As a rule, the French report was the most diffuse.

This brevity of English is partly explained by the fact that English is made up to an extraordinary extent of words of one syllable. Its nouns having (unlike the German) lost all their inflections except the possessive "s," have become mere roots, a very large proportion of them monosyllabic. In Germany a monosyllabic root practically always gets an extra syllable tacked on by way of case ending. In the second place English has little of the elaborate and explicit machinery of structure that French has, so it saves space in prepositions and such paraphernalia. Instead, English has what the grammarians call incipient agglutination—that is, sticking words together in groups without either prepositions or case endings to connect them.

An example of the former kind of brevity is a word like "earthquake," two syllables, compared with the German "erdbeben," three syllables, and the French "tremblement de terre," five syllables. An example of the terseness of English would be a phrase like, "I have been to the house and have now come back;" every word a single syllable. In a telegram this would be just as intelligible in the form "Been house now back." You cannot carry that sort of thing far in any other European language.—Manchester Guardian.

Right In Style.

Small Stella had always worn high shoes, but she had long desired a pair of slippers like those her older sister wore. "Mamma," she queried one day, "when my shoes are worn out can't I have a pair of low necked shoes like sister's?"—Cincinnati Times-Star.

Pure Bred Arab Horses.

In Cairo there is a society for preserving the pure bred Arab horse. It is said that recent changes in the lives and habits of the Bedouins have resulted in the deterioration of these horses. America Knows How to Finance a War

THE United States, through the experience of the warring European powers, has acquired a tremendous fund of preparedness information. Americans who have served with the European armies and navies have made available to us their valuable experience in the world war.

In the less spectacular, although hardly less important, phase of the struggle, war financing, this country has also had skilled observers. It has not been necessary for them to visit the scene of the struggle. In a way the scene of the struggle has come to them. Much of the planning of the financial side of the war has taken place within the sound of the chimes of Trinity church, in lower Broadway, New York.

By reason of our newly acquired leadership in the world's finances we know how Europe has financed herself to meet the strain of her tremendous struggle. Money is the sinews of war. We know how Europe has kept her sinews pliant and efficient.

America, therefore, is in a much better position, from both military and financial standpoints than we were at the beginning of any of the five wars, which brought us face to face with weighty economic, financial and social problems. The problems of the Revolutionary War, the War of 1812, the Mexican War, the Civil War, and the Spanish American War, were of less magnitude than those which we face now, but comparatively they were much more serious.

The banks and trust companies of this country, through which Europe has conducted much of her war financing, are at one with the nation's industries in affording the government the resources with which to meet the eventualities of war. For example, the Guaranty Trust Company, of New York, has recently reduced to book form its fund of information on war financing. In a pamphlet entitled "War Loans and the United States," there is some rather striking information. One result of our new position as a world market, it points out, is a marvelous increase in our stock of gold. The United States now holds approximately thirty per cent of the world's supply. This is an increase of thirty-six per cent over the amount held by this country in 1914, and upon us is thrown the obligation of employing it intelligently. We are discharging this obligation by using it as a basis for foreign loans and the extension of credit.

Facing, as we do, the possibility of floating in this country not only European war loans, but also loans of our own, it is comforting to realize that the financial strength of Great Britain and France has not been affected in the slightest degree by the tremendous strain to which it has been subjected in the last two years and a half. The wealth and resources of both countries are so enormous that there is no probability of loss through loans to their governments. With all our tremendous resources and our present store of gold we may look upon the possibility of a bond issue to meet the expenses of war with much optimism.

After a three year test, such as the world never before had seen, the financial situation of Great Britain was such that the Right Hon Reginald McKenna, Chancellor of the British Exchequer, thus describes it: "If we were to end the war at the end of the current financial year—that is to say, on March 31, 1917—our present scale of taxation would provide not only for the whole of our peace expenditure and the interest on the whole national debt, but also for a sinking fund calculated to redeem that debt in less than forty years, and there would still remain a surplus sufficient to allow me to abolish the excess profits tax and to reduce other taxes considerably."

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's recipe to bring color, lustre and youthfulness to hair when faded, streaked or gray.

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients for 50 cents a large bottle, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

1716 Heels on 1916 Feet

You wear a 1916 hat, a 1916 suit.

But you wear 1716 heels if you wear leather heels.

You drive a 1916 car, use 1916 office or shop equipment, live in a 1916 house.

But your leather heels are out of date.

Leather heels are as obsolete as mustache cups, celluloid dickeys and powdered periwigs. They aren't adaptable to modern conditions.

This is the day of rubber heels. They are individual shockabsorbers—spine savers—that make the hardest pavements as soft as a Brussels carpet.

They are made for 1916 pavements.

Bring your heels up-to-date. Wear O'Sullivan's Heels of New Live Rubber.

Insist on O'Sullivanized shoes; the new live rubber heels give the greatest wear with the greatest resiliency.

This gale of merriment which taxed the vocabulary of every New York and Chicago reviewer and every correspondent of the out-of-town press, and which was hailed as the fount of the season's greatest gayety, made such a prompt success at the Harris Theatre in New York last season, that before the end of its first three months, it was in demand from North, East, South and West, for many months before Selwyn & Company were able to place it on tour. Its reputation is that it has had few equals and no superiors, in all the history of the American Theatre. Selwyn & Company send it here with the same admirable cast, and the complete production as seen here last November.
